Construction progressing for San Jacinto College's new Maritime Training Center at port

PASADENA, Texas – A recent ground-breaking of the Maritime Training Center was held to mark the beginning stages of construction of the future home of all maritime training at San Jacinto College. At the site of 3700 Old Highway 146 in La Porte, one can see the view of concrete piers that will support the 45,000-square-foot San Jacinto College Maritime Training Center.

San Jacinto College Chancellor Dr. Brenda Hellyer explained how the rapid growth of the College's maritime program over the course of four years has brought the program to this point of expansion.

"When we began envisioning what we wanted to see for our maritime training program, we knew we had to build a world-class facility," said Dr. Hellyer. Since 2010, the College has awarded approximately 3,200 U.S. Coast Guard-required certifications and developed the state's first associate degree maritime transportation program. In 2012, the College purchased 13 acres of land along the Port of Houston to begin the process of building the Maritime Training Center.

"We looked at a lot of different locations along the water, and we kept coming back to this property," added Dr. Hellyer. "The Maritime Training Center was developed based on industry input and leadership, and will allow us to put in place the training areas that are required to make this program a success now and in the long term."

Maritime employment remains strong in Texas, as the state leads the nation in export tonnage and imports. Well over 1 million jobs are related to marine eargo activity at the Port of Houston and private terminals, according to a report by the Port of Houston Authority. Issues such as an aging workforce and expansion of the Panama Canal also drive the need to train and prepare more mariners for the industry. Maritime employment re-

Fire erupts at trash site in Cloverleaf area

Cloverleaf Fire Department was called to the scene of a smoky trash fire last Tuesday afternoon, at the corner of McNair and Frankie Streets in the Cloverleaf area.

Two firetrucks fought for several hours to suppress the flames and smoke, which kept burning due to the way trash was piled and compacted on the site.

A representative of the family that owns the property, Paula Neal, said that workmen were in the process of clearing the property when the fire was discovered. The property is for sale, with new construction anticipated on the site.

At presstime, no cause for the fire was known. Witnesses said that some of the containers were being used as shelter for the home-

Cloverleaf Fire Department responded to the fire with two pumper trucks and other equipment, as Precinct 3 constables kept traffic away from the site. In the photo above, a deluge nozzle was used to reach fire in the interior of the property.

Science Survivor Series - Science Gets Serious

GPISD held its first Elementary Science Survivor Series (S3) on Friday, January 16th at the Administration Building. To showcase skills in problem solving, critical thinking, and STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering and nology, Engineering Math), all 15 GPISD ele

ing, and STEM Science, Technology, Engineering and Math), all 15 GPISD elementary school sent a team of six to represent their campus to compete in three challenges - academic, building, and creativity. The teams and their sponsors have been working together all year in preparation for this event; however, they did not know what the challenges would entail until the day of the competition.

For the academic portion, teams were asked to showcase their science content knowledge. In a game called Picture II, a team member was selectied to sketch up to 21 science terms while their teammates guessed as many as they could in five minutes. To showcase their building and writing skills, one student described a pre-built creation to a teammate, who then used a pre-set tub of materials and their partner's written notes to replicate the creation as closely as possible. Creativity was demonstrated with a Texas appropriate task - students were challenged to determine how to best insulate an ice cube to

Some card companies also use this clever trick: They suddenly lower your limit below your balance and then ding you with an over-limit fee.

Return Preparer Fraud Hits IRS Annual "Dirty Dozen" List

WASHINGTON, January 27, 2015 - The Internal Reve-nue Service today warned tax-payers to be on the lookout for nue Service today warned taxpayers to be on the lookout for unscrupulous return preparers, one of the most common "Dirty Dozen" tax scams seen during tax season.

The vast majority of tax professionals provide honest high-quality service. But there are some dishonest preparers who set up shop each filing season to perpetrate refund fraud, identity theft and other scams that hurt taxpayers. That's why unscrupulous preparers who prey on unsuspecting taxpayers with outlandish promises of overly large refunds make the Dirty Dozen list every year.

"Filing a tax return can be one of the biggest financial transactions of the year, so taxpayers should choose their tax return preparers carefully," said IRS Commissioner John Koskinen. "Most tax professionals provide top-notch service, but we see bad actors every year that steal from their clients or compromise returns in ways that can severely harm taxpayers."

Return preparers are a vital part of the U.S. tax system. About 60 percent of taxpayers use tax professionals to pre-

Return preparers are a vital part of the U.S. tax system. About 60 percent of taxpayers use tax professionals to prepare their returns.

Illegal scams can lead to significant penalties and interest and possible criminal prosecution. IRS Criminal Investigation works closely with the Department of Justice (DOJ) to shutdown scams and prosecute the criminals behind them.

Choosing Return
Preparers Carefully
It is important to choose carefully when hiring an individual or firm to prepare your return. Well-intentioned tax payers can be misled by preparers who don't understand taxes or who mislead people into taking credits or deductions they aren't entitled to in order to increase their fee. Every year, these types of tax preparers face everything from penalties to even jail

Here are a few tips when choosing a tax preparer:

• Check to be sure the preparer has an IRS Preparer Tax
Identification Number (PTIN). Anyone with a valid 2015 PTIN is authorized to prepare PTİN is authorized to prepare federal tax returns. Tax return preparers, however, have differing levels of skills, education and expertise. An important difference in the types of practitioners is "representation rights". You can learn more about the several different types of return preparers on IRS.gov/chooseatax-pro.

officient types of return pre-parers on IRS.gov/chooseatax-pro.

•Ask the tax preparer if they have a professional cre-dential (enrolled agent, certi-fied public accountant, or attorney), belong to a profes-sional organization or attend continuing education classes. A number of tax law changes, including the Affordable Care including the Affordable Care Act provisions, can be complex. A competent tax professional needs to be up-to-date in these matters. Tax return preparers aren't required to have a professional credential, but make sure you understand the qualifications of the preparer you select.

sure you understand the qualifications of the preparer you select.

•Check on the service fees upfront. Avoid preparers who base their fee on a percentage of your refund or those who say they can get larger refunds than others can.

•Always make sure any refund due is sent to you or deposited into your bank account. Taxpayers should not deposit their refund into a preparer's bank account.

•Make sure your preparer offers IRS e-file and ask that your return be submitted to the IRS electronically. Any tax professional who gets paid to prepare and file more than 10 returns generally must file the returns electronically. It's the safest and most accurate way to file a return, whether you to it alone or pay someone to prepare and file for you.

•Make sure the preparer will be available. Make sure you'll be able to contact the tax preparer after you file your return – even after the April 15 due date. This may be helpful in the event questions come up about your tax return.

*Provide records and receipts. Good preparers will ask to see your records and receipts. They'll ask you questions to determine your total income, deductions, tax credits and other items. Do not rely on a preparer who is willing to e-file your return using your last pay stub instead of your Form W-2. This is against IRS e-file rules.

THOUGHTS FROM MARANATHA CHURCH

By Dr. Mark Trice

Maranatha Church

"Bless You!"

Bless you! These are two very powerful words, words that we too often underestimate or even use carelessly. When was the last time you really thought you really thought about what happens when you bless some Consider just one incident that took place during the three years Jesus was ministering on this earth. In Luke nine's account of the nine's account of the feeding of the 5,000, He faced a multitude of people who had been with Him for hours. They were hungry and far from the market; He far from the market; He determined that they would not stay hungry. What did He do? He gathered together the food they did have, five loaves of bread and two fish and He blessed it. fish, and He blessed it. nish, and He blessed it. After this, He gave it to His disciples and the food was multiplied so greatly that they had twelve baskets of leftovers.

We also know, from Scripture, the impor-tance of the father's blessing upon his child; it could quite literally make a man's future! Luke 6:28 tels us to bless those who curse us, which is a superus, which is a super-naturally powerful thing that can mightily change situations and even people. Over and over throughout the Bible, you find super-natural power accom-panying the blessing.

I encourage you to bear this in mind as you go through your days. Bless the people you come in contact with. They don't neces-sarily have to hear you sarily have to hear you do it, but you can speak blessings over them just the same. Bless your spouse, bless your children, bless the man who cuts you off on the freeway... Sometimes your first instinct may be just the opposite, but knowing the power of the blessing as you do, you should realize that God can work mighty miracles in the mighty miracles in the heart of that person.
Maybe tomorrow his actions will be different "Bless you." They're two very simple words that bring far from simple results. Let's use them!

This Super Bowl could be one for the ages

The Super Bowl will celebrate its big "50" in 2016, but No. 49 might be one of the best matchups ever as the defending champs will be taking on a team that will be looking to win its fourth Lombardi Trophy and leave its head coach and quarterback

Lombardi Trophy and leave its head coach and quarterback with a legacy few have attainted in the NFL.

Much will be at stake when New England and Seattle tee it pat around 5:30 p.m. on Sunday from Glendale, AZ.

The Seahawks will be looking for their second straight Super Bowl win, which will make them the eighth franchise to accomplish that feat (Seattle would join back-back winners Green Bay, Miami, Pittsburgh (accomplished twice), Dallas, Denver, New England and San Francisco), while the Patriots will be looking to become a four-time winner (Pittsburgh has six, Dallas and San Francisco have five each, and Francisco have five each, and Green Bay and the Giants have Green Bay and the citarits rave four each).

If the Patriots win, head coach Bill Belichick would join Steeler great Chuck Noll as the only head coaches in the history of the NFL who have guided their teams to four Lombardi Trophies, while quarterback Tom Brady would join Pittsburgh's Terry Bradshaw and San Francisco's Joe Montana as the only quarterbacks to lead their teams to four Super Bowl titles. A Seattle victory would give head coach Pete Carroll his second straight title, and he would join the ranks of head coaches (Noll (4), Joe Gibbs (3), Bill Walsh (3), Tom Landry (2), Jimmy Johnson (2), Vince Lombardi (2), Bill Parcells (2), Tom Flores (2), Mike Shanahan (2), Tom Coughlin (2) and George Siefert (2)) who have one two or more crowns.

A Seattle win would also move quarterback Russell Wilson into elite company and make him one of 12 NFL quarterbacks who have two or more Super Bowl title under their belts (Bradshaw (4), Montana (4), Troy Alkman (3), Brady (3), Bart Starr (2), Bob Griese (2), Roger Staubach (2), Jim Plunkett (2), John Elway (2), Ben Rothlisberger (2) and Eli Manning (21). That's definitely an elite list!

side stories to report on during Super Bowl week and the game itself will pit the top seeds from their respective conferences. Both teams took different paths to get to Glendale. Seattle struggled early and was 6-4 after 10 games and looked like they may not even make the playoffs, but in early November, Carroll addressed the team's leaders and the message was well received as Seattle ran off six straight regular-season wins and then added two more in the playoffs to enter this game riding an eight-game winning streak. The defense was downright dominant the last half of the season, allowing 39 points during Seattle's six-game winning streak (6.5 points per game).

Seattle righted the ship and took care of Carolina in the Divisional round of the playoffs, before coming through with a

Divisional round of the playoffs, before coming through with a miraculous rally in the NFC Conference game against

Green Bay.

Trailing 19-7 with less than five minutes left to play, Wilson shook off what had been one of his worst performances as a pro (four interceptions and a pro (four interceptions and a subpar passing day) and rallied his team to 15 points to take a 22-19 lead with just seconds to Go. We all know what happened next. Green Bay's Aaron Rodgers drove his team to the game-tying field goal, but in overtime, Wilson threw the game-winning touchdown pass on Seattle's first possession to return the 'Hawks to their game-winning touchdown pass on Seattle's first possession to return the 'Hawks to their second straight Super Bowl. Many experts were writing off the Patriots after suffering a humiliating 41-14 loss at Kansas City on Sept. 29. Some believed Brady was washed up and it was time for him to hang it up. Well, all Brady did was lead the Pats to seven straight wins after that debacle in KC and 10 wins in their last 12 games to guiet his critics. In the first-round of the playoffs, NE fell behind by 14 points twice to the Ravens, but behind Brady, they rallied for a 55-31 win, and then blew out Indianapolis in the AFC title game, 45-7, as Brady and running back LeGarrette Blount led the way. Brady threw for three touchdowns and 367 yards, while Blount ran over and around the Indy defense for 148 yards and three touchdowns. In two playoff games, Brady has thrown for 593 yards and six touchdowns, but he'll face his sternest test of the season on Sunday when he faces Seattle's celebrated "Legion of Boom" secondary, which is chock full of All-Pros.

Two of those All-Pros, cornerback Richard Sherman and safety Earl Thomas suffered injuries in the Green Bay win and might not be at 100 percent come Sunday. Sherman suffered a hyper extended elbow, while Thomas sustained a dislocated shoulder. Both plan on playing in the Super Bowl.
You can bet Brady will test both of them early to see what effect their injuries have on them and look for tight end Rob Gronkowski to get plenty of looks early as Brady looks to establish the pass first to set up Blount and NE's host of other running backs.
The Seahawks will do just the opposite. They'll pound Marshot Lynch (157 yards, one touchdown in the NFC title game) at the New England defense and also look to get Wilson going in the running game as well. The Seahawks don't have a game-breaker at wide receiver, but they have guys who make plays when called upon.

While Seattle will enter the game with the more celebrated defense, the Patriots can play a bit of defense themselves, and have their own shutdown corner in Darrell Revis. I expect Revis to clamp down on Seattle WR Doug Baldwin (the team's leading receiver) and force

WR Doug Baldwin (the team's leading receiver) and force Wilson to beat them by going to more inexperienced wide outs. I don't expect a blow out like we had last year when Seattle decimated Denver, 43-8. New England's offensive line is solid and Brady looks like his old self. He knows his legacy will be determined by a fourth Super Bowl win, and it says here he will be the one who makes the crucial play down the stretch to put him and Belichick on the Mount Rushmore of NFL head coaches and quarterbacks. ## MARITIME CENTER,

The San Jacinto College Maritime Training Center, set for completion in approximately one year, will provide certificate, associate degree, and incumbent worker maritime training, and will include U.S. Coast Guard-required and approved deck and engineering coursework to prepare mariners for work commercial vessels, from deckhand on an inland towboat to captain of an oil tanker.

The building will sit 14 feet above ground. The ground level will showcase a training dock with lifeboats, davits, and fast rescue craft, and a sepa-rate industry dock for crew changes. This also will allow for vessel specific training for local maritime companies and will serve as an aquatic training facility for sea survival and life raft training, complete with men's and women's locker rooms.

There will be 15 classrooms; engineering simulators to train maritime engineers for hydraulic, electric, pump control, motor control, heating and air conditioning, and refrigeration; and a multipurpose space for industry conferences and corporate partner meetings.

"This facility is going to make a big impact and help mariners stay competitive in a global industry. I believe it will become a center of excellence," said Rear Adm. William W. Pickavance, Jr., who serves as a consultant to the San Jacinto College maritime program.

Highlights of the new facility include three full-mission ship bridge simulators, acquired from the Houston Pilots in 2013. These room-sized replicas of ship control bridges will become a part of a 3,748 square-foot simulation suite, complete with instructor stations, debrief classrooms, and development stations. A full-mission engine room simulator also is planned for the future and will interest and interconnect with the bridge simulators to allow vessel management exercises to acmanagement exercises to ac-commodate deck and engi-neering officers and crew at the same time, in the same

"We're excited to be partners with San Jacinto College and to be on board with the Maritime Training Center," said Capt. Mike Morris, presiding officer of the Houston Pilots.

Tellepsen Builders serve as the general contractor for the development of the Maritime Training Center. Texas IBI Group is the architect; Brooks & Sparks is the civil engineer; and Rizzo & Associates is the program manager.
