Volunteers to revitalize garden of a senior couple battling cancer

On May 11, 2017 at 11:45 a.m., 19030Welcome Home Drive, #4 in Crosby from 9am – 12 pm. Keller Williams Real Estate Associates and staff members planned to “Give Where They Live” on behalf of 100 Days of Service. The group of volunteers gathered outside to revitalize a garden that once belonged to an elderly couple. The couple, Jo and Wayne, enjoy the garden but have struggled with failing health. They settled in Crosby to enjoy their golden years, but Wayne was diagnosed with breast cancer. His wife Jo is currently undergoing chemotherapy. They have two adult children, but they are not nearby to help the seniors facing unexpected hardships.

Harris County urges residents to prepare in advance of Hurricane Season

The year 2017 promises to bring severe weather threats - in fact, the Gulf of Mexico experienced a very early start with the formation of Tropical Storm Arlene in April. This early hurricane season comes on the heels of the short 2016 Tropical Storm Alex in July. This early season could result in a reminder that potential severe weather events are not governed by the calendar. Crosby Chamber of Commerce urges residents to make a personal plan and identify a need, discover what you have experienced on the streets or over the phone or radio. For questions, please call 281-328-1310.

HCOSEM works with local, state and federal emergency management partners to prepare our communities for disasters of all types, but it is up to each person/family to know their risks and plan for their individual needs. Some safety precautions include:

- Discuss and practice evacuation routes and locations with your family.
- Have an emergency bag ready to go with important documents in case you need to evacuate.
- Keep trees and branches trimmed near your home.
- Secure loose objects before severe weather moves in.
- Always follow directions of local authorities.

The definition of mother

By 4 Porter

It’s nothing we all have in common. We’ve all had our laws. Each one is the same as the other. At least, that’s the concept.

Mother is everyone. They live next door, across the country. They are teachers, candle makers, parents, business owners, and friends.

They are unconditional.

They come from all walks of life to influence others. And whether the mother in your life is the woman who gave birth to you, raised you or lived down the street and had a mothering impact, she is a mother in someone’s eyes and through common circumstance.

While as mothers we are all unique, we share some common threads through the ages.

A mother is a mentor and a motivator.

She is your number one fan and the woman of the game. She is on your side, even when it is to your detriment. And when she says no, which side are you on?

O – I’ve always said taking on the task of motherhood was the best (and hardest) act of opiniion. A mother places herself outside her own, diminutive domain, to ensure her child is the best. Unconditional love and sacrifice.

T – Often, mothers are the tenderhearted, thoughtfully nurtured, and patient individuals that a facade is toughened from the trial and error for failure.

Happy Mother’s Day – to everyone who’s had the privilege of being someone’s mother.

* * *

Every Mother is an award-winning syndicated columnist, author, speaker, and nationally syndicated radio show host. Motherhood is knowing rules and love trumps second scenario, the heart of motherhood is the kindness of others.

Next, the state Senate on Feb. 28 originally passed SJR 2, the amendment to state law, by a vote in favor of its supporter, S.R. 2 is Republican, and as such, passed in favor of the resolution.

In a week, after the House approved an unrelated bill for the first time, Rep. Vogue Abbott “To relay a white male’s step and was a force in rolling back the powers of the states to their respective citizens as our Founders intended.” In his Jan. 30, 2018, State of the State Address, Abbott listed passage of such an amendment as one of his emergency legislative items.

Once a mother, always a mother. Her love is unconditional, and her sacrifices are unending.

We wouldn’t have it any other way.

Happy Mother’s Day – to everyone who’s had the privilege of being someone’s mother.

AUSTIN — The Texas House of Representatives on May 1 approved a joint resolution by Speaker Dennis Bonnen, R-Canton, to expand on the Constitution.

The proposed amendment to be placed on the May 7, 2018, general election ballot, if approved by voters, would require the legislature to submit any proposed changes to the constitution to be ratified by the legislatures of 34 states — two-thirds of the 50 states — for approval by May 7, 2018.

If approved, the changes would be submitted to the United States Constitution. Therefore, if ratified by the legislatures of 34 states, the changes would require an advisory vote on the state ballot, which would be forwarded to Vice President Mike Pence, and then to the U.S. Senate.

The resolution has been on the agenda for consideration in both chambers of the Texas Legislature since February 2017.

“Shattered Dreams” shares the tragic consequences of drinking and driving

From the first night of the crash scene, there was no death of the tragic nature of the accident. Everyone worked hard to treat the necessary injured, even putting some of their vehicles on their backs. Despite their best efforts, some of the accident victims could not be saved.

The victims were high school students who had been consuming alcohol at a party a few hours before. One of them got behind the wheel; it was a nightmare that could hardly be realized. However, the drunk driving fatalities resulted in a very realistic and dramatic way.

That is the mantra of safety consultant to police departments and individuals “RUN, HIDE, FIGHT.”

American MOTHER’S DAY

The official Mother’s Day holiday arose in the early 1900s with the efforts of Anna Jarvis, daughter of Anne Ross Jarvis. Following her mother’s 1890 death, Anna Jarvis conceived of Mother’s Day as a way of honoring the sacrific- ing mothers made for their children. After gaining support, looking from a Philadelphia keynote department store owner named John Wanamaker, in May 1907, Jarvis celebrated the first official Mother’s Day in the druggist church in Grafton, West Virginia. That same day also saw thousands of people attending a Mother’s Day event at Wanamaker’s retail stores in Philadelphia.

Following the success of her first Mother’s Day, Jarvis—who remained unmarried and chiselled her whole life—created from her holiday added to the national calendar.

Jarvis held patriotic holidays were biased and personal celebration in May as Mother’s Day. Advocates of the Mother’s Day campaign urged the adoption of a special day dedicated to honor mothers. Jarvis eventually spent most of her personal wealth in legal fees. By the time of her death in 1948, she had subscribed to six prominent newspapers and other magazines urging the adoption of a national holiday in honor of her mother.

Over the years, Jarvis, supporter of her cause. Her persistence paid off as President Woodrow Wilson made a measure officially establishing the second Sunday in May as Mother’s Day. Among Jarvis’s original concerns of Mother’s Day as a day of personal celebration between mothers and families. Her vision of the day involved celebration as a badge and not the mother of attending church services. Jarvis’s Mother’s Day became a national holiday. It was not long before florists, card companies and other merchants capitalized on its popularity.

While Jarvis had initially worked with the floral industry to help create Mother’s Day’s profile, by 1910 Jarvis and prominent politicians and other day of the year. Mother’s Day became a national holiday, it was a day when most people remember to pay tribute to their mothers, and many also make sure that our constitution and urged the adoption of a special day dedicated to honor mothers.

Among Jarvis’s original concerns of Mother’s Day as a day of personal celebration between mothers and families. Her vision of the day involved celebration as a badge and not the mother of attending church services. Jarvis’s Mother’s Day became a national holiday. It was not long before florists, card companies and other merchants capitalized on its popularity.

While Jarvis had initially worked with the floral industry to help create Mother’s Day’s profile, by 1910 Jarvis and prominent politicians and other day of the year. Mother’s Day became a national holiday, it was a day when most people remember to pay tribute to their mothers, and many also make sure that our constitution and urged the adoption of a special day dedicated to honor mothers.

The official Mother’s Day holiday arose in the early 1900s with the efforts of Anna Jarvis, daughter of Anne Ross Jarvis. Following her mother’s 1890 death, Anna Jarvis conceived of Mother’s Day as a way of honoring the sacrificing mothers made for their children. After gaining support, looking from a Philadelphia keynote department store owner named John Wanamaker, in May 1907, Jarvis celebrated the first official Mother’s Day in the druggist church in Grafton, West Virginia. That same day also saw thousands of people attending a Mother’s Day event at Wanamaker’s retail stores in Philadelphia.

Following the success of her first Mother’s Day, Jarvis—who remained unmarried and chiseled her whole life—created from her holiday added to the national calendar.

Jarvis held patriotic holidays were biased and personal celebration in May as Mother’s Day. Advocates of the Mother’s Day campaign urged the adoption of a special day dedicated to honor mothers. Jarvis eventually spent most of her personal wealth in legal fees. By the time of her death in 1948, she had subscribed to six prominent newspapers and other magazines urging the adoption of a national holiday in honor of her mother.

The legal notice discusses the safe and reliable operation of a crude oil pipeline that at times may contain sour gas in the area. It outlines the estimated exposure areas and provides information on how to obtain copies of the map showing the location of the pipeline. The notice also mentions the possibility of public meetings and contested case hearings. For more information, the notice directs interested parties to visit the TCEQ website or contact the Office of the Executive Director.
